fictim Sues for $10,000 Damages for False Arrest and Imprisonment and Defendants Give Bail In $400

The story told by Alois Lupinek in is application upon which Bernard the interpreter at Yorkville Police Court, and Vincent Woytisch have been arrested by Deputy Sheriff Terry and admitted to ball in $400 ch, on an order of Justice Scott, of the Supreme Court, is the story of an unding hold-up, in which a court officer, a policeman, a lawyer and a wine dealer in "Little Bohemia" fig-

Lapfnek, who lives at No. 432 East Seventy-sixth street and is a Bo-bemian, sues Joseph F. Brodil, the ine agent: Thomas J. Of this, $10,000 is or damages for false arrest and imconment; $360 is the amount he says they scared him into giving up, and the other $150 is for lost wages.

In his affidavit, on which the order f arrest was issued. Lupinek says he as employed by Brodil as manager of his wine cellar at No. 408 East lixty-fourth street, down to Jan. 25 02. That he had $603 in the United States Savings Bank and $360 in cash, hich he had drawn only a day or two

He says Brodil and Tunney as fled him in the cafe, charging him with stealing all the money, and that, without the formality of a warrant or ther legal process, they visited his m, broke open his trunk, and took bank book. They demanded, but would not give up the cash. He as thereupon placed under arrest by Tunney and hustled direct to the Yorkville Police Court. There, accordto Lupinek's affidavit, his captors held a long consultation with the court interpreter, Bernard Here, and Woytisck, after which Here turned and aid to him in the Bohemian language: "You know you stole the money. You re in a bad fix. Thi is a serious case. you are Hable to get five years in State ison. You'd better settle it. I will do all I can for you if you will give me $300 will fix it up for you and you will not will fix it in for you and you will not be brought before the judge."

Woytisek added, the affidavit says.

You leave $360 her in court, and you will get your bank book back and be a tree man in a few minutes through the influence of Mr. Here, the detective, and myself. But if you don't do as I say you will get five years and lose your money besides."

sale to-day that the charges against Mr. Woytisek were the result of a long and bitter fight in Bohemian circles of this cay. He declared that at the time of the arrest of Lupinek charges of a sarilar nastre were made against Here, and a committee of the Board of City Magistrates investigated the charges and decided that there wasn't even sufficient evidence against Here to formulate formal charges against him for his removal from his nosition.

Lawyer Nekarda, however, says that the charges investigated by the Magistrates related to Herc's anarchistic lews.

Father of Michael Kruck, Newsboy Who Was Strangled to Death, Says He Has New Evidence Against Kallas.

wsboy. Michael Kruck, who was strangled to death by a mysterious assallant in Central Park last Wednesday night, believing he had met with much success in the independent search he has made for the slayer of his son, went to the Arsenal Police Station in the Park today and asked for the rearrest of Nichowas once arrested and then discharged. Kallas sold flowers at the corner of Eighty-sixth street and Central Park Vest, and while there made enemies of most of the newsboys. His disappearance after the body of the boy was found in the park near that corner aroused suspicion. When arrested he said he had not been seiling flowers at that corner since the week previous to the murder of the boy. His brother also said that because of the storm of the preceding week he had given up the Central Park stand and had been seiling flowers in the downtown streets.

The boy's father has found witnesses who will dispute the statements of the Greek. Otto and Alfred Katzenberger, who were newsboys at Seventy-second street and Central Park West, until a few days ago, have told Mr. Kruck that they saw Kallas, who had threatened to kill them months ago, at Seventy-second street and Central Park West, at 4 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon.

Policeman Morris told the father that he saw Kallas at Central Park West and Eighty-first street an hour and a half later that afternoon.

The father asked that the Greek be rearrested. After Mr. Kruck had told his story several detectives left the station, and it was believed that they had gone in search of the Greek. found in the park near that corner
